Anchorage Airport Master Plan Update

Reminder: Public Comments Still Being Accepted

The Anchorage Airport will continue to accept comments on the Master Plan Update in 2014. Comments will be accepted through the release of the draft Master Plan Update report (estimated Spring 2014), at which time the public will have an opportunity to comment on the document prior to final publication. The Airport will consider and respond to all comments received.

Review the Draft Master Plan Materials

If you missed the December 11 meeting, you can review the presentation and meeting materials on our library page. The library page also has materials from the six other public open house events that the Master Plan Update team has held since June 2012.

Public Involvement to Date

Community participation and input is at the heart of this Master Plan Update and has been ongoing from June 2012 to date and included 7 public open houses, 7 Working Group meetings, 5 Technical Advisory Committee meetings, 280,000 postcard notifications, 22 e-newsletters and 75 stakeholder meetings. Since the project's initiation in the summer of 2012, the Anchorage International Airport Master Plan Update team has been accepting and responding to public comments using a series of comment response reports (available in the project website library).
